Consultancy: Papua New Guinea Coordinator, SPREP – WWF Turtle Use Project

WWF-Pacific is looking to recruit a Consultant to investigate the socio-cultural use of marine turtles in Papua New Guinea (PNG) to inform national and regional decision-making to reduce the use and trade of marine turtles. The proposed work will involve seeking community member responses to a newly developed sociocultural survey through conducting community workshops in six major towns.

Location:
Consultancy will be based in PNG (location is negotiable).

Period of Consultancy: July – December 2022 (with a possible extension or availability up to 4 months after this date)

Required Competencies:
- Availability for the entire duration of the project is mandatory.
- Willingness to travel in-country (within PNG) is mandatory.
- Excellent written and verbal communication skills in English and local languages (Pigin, Hiri Motu).
- Experience using Microsoft Office, including Word, Excel, and Outlook.
- Experience working with local communities, preferably on natural resource management projects.
- Experience developing and running workshops to elicit key information.
- Proven ability to manage project budgets.
- Proven ability to meet tight deadlines and manage competing priorities.
- Ability to work autonomously, collaboratively as part of a remote internationally dispersed team.
- Knowledge of marine turtles, marine conservation, coastal fisheries, and biology will be a strong asset.
- Familiarity with survey tools and social science is preferred, but not mandatory.
- Must have own reliable laptop, mobile phone and access to the Internet.
- Adhere to WWF’s values, which are Courage, Collaboration, Respect & Integrity.
